Mission

From its inception, CCN has focused on the needs of the specifying community. Customizing furniture to fit an office or providing environmentally sound product. Solid woods and veneers are derived from sustained forest management areas. CCN is continually committed to protecting our environment.

Accountability for the origin of raw materials allows CCN to supply environmentally sound products, and have comfort with business partners that have sound environmental practices. Product life cycle is an important factor when purchasing furniture and its impact on our environment. CCN builds product to last. Quality materials and durable construction play an important part in preserving the earth's resources, and can contribute LEED Credit 3.3 for resource reuse on future projects.

During construction, adhesives free of volatile organic compounds are used to protect office environments from toxins. The use of water-based finishes has become reliable and offers an environmentally safe alternative. Combining the use of renewable resources with sound manufacturing practices promotes environmentally friendly standards for many years to come.
